Ohhh... Mr. Chung:

1.

Dashes:

Mr. Chung—a funny man—lives in Hong Kong.

Comma splice:

Mr. Chung, a funny man, lives in Hong Kong.

Parenthesis:

Mr. Chung (a funny man) lives in Hong Kong.

1 dash:

I like Mr. Chung—a funny man from Hong Kong.

1 comma:

I like Mr. Chung, a funny man from Hong Kong.

Prepositional phrase: (of, with, in)

Mr. Chung of Hong Kong is a funny man.

Mr. Chung with dark hair is from Hong Kong.

The bus in Hong Kong travels down the street.

The Pigs rule:

Plural subject-singular verb (P-S) The pigs run in the pen.

or

Singular subject-plural verb (S-P) The pig runs in the pen.

Combine Mr. Chung with the Pigs rule:

The pig ~~with a pink tail~~ makes a mess when it eats.

The pigs ~~with pink tails~~ make a mess when they eat.

Noun is plural so verb will be singular.

Ex: The trees ~~in the countryside~~ look dry.

Ohhhh! Mr. Chung, all you do is give us more nonsense about the preceding noun in a sentence!
